LAURIER REACHES HOME.

He Expresses Himself as Being Delighted With His Western Tour.

Chattell, the Listowel Murderer Supposed to be "Jack the Ripper."

Stratford, Oct. 29.—The popular theory here is that Chattell the murderer of Jessie Keith, is "Jack the Ripper." His photograph has been sent to the London authorities for identification by one of the women who came through "the ripper's" hands alive.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., Oct. 29.—Chattel, the murderer of Jessie Keith, is a native of this town and has relatives here who are very respectable people.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—In referring the Manitoba government's reply to the memorial of the privy council and the petition of the Roman Catholics for the restoration of separate schools, the Gazette, Conservative, says: "Not only do the Manitoba authorities refuse to make any concessions to the Catholics but they defend and justify the provincial law and make it evident that if it is made they will resist to the last any attempt of the Dominion government or the Dominion parliament to change the school system they have established. In taking this attitude they probably feel that they have the majority of the province with them."

The rumors that it is the intention of the government to follow up the arrest of St. Louis by criminal proceedings against other prominent parties, is causing intense political excitement. Ouimet's organ, Le Monde, threatens the desertion of the party by the French members.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—Sir John Thompson, accompanied by Senator Sanford, left for New York to-day. He sails on the Majestic on Wednesday for England and while there will be sworn in imperial privy councillor. He will be absent about 4 month.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—It is quite probable that in the near future Toronto will have a new hotel costing $1,000,000, and eclipsing in grandeur any establishment of the kind in Canada. Efforts are now being made to form a joint stock company with some of the leading business men of the city as the provisional directors. Should the plan succeed, in all likelihood stock would be floated in London as the capitalists there regard with favor investments in hotel and brewery stock. The chief figure in the movement is Mr. Hazen Walker with whom Mr. William Mackenzie, president of the Toronto street railway, is associated.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—Hon. Mr. Laurier and party arrived here this morning and were delighted with their trip. He was called upon by a number of friends and leaves for his home at Athabaskaville this evening. He is to address two meetings here in a fortnight. When seen Mr. Laurier had not read Mr. Greenway's manifesto and refused to say a word about the schools.

THE NEW LOAN.

Minister Foster's Report—Judgment in Steel Rail Cases.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—Deputy Minister Courtney received the following cable to-day from the minister of finance. The Canadian loan was a great success. There were 564 tenders. The total amount tendered for was £11,300,000 sterling. The range of tenders was from the minimum of 95 to 99 5-8. The allotments were 49 per cent. of those who tendered £97 8s. 6d., and all those who tendered above that. The average all round that the government receives was 97 1-2.

Justice Burbidge gave judgment in the exchequer court to-day in the case of the Toronto street railway, who sued the government for $56,000 duty paid on steel rails. The company claimed that the rails, which weighed 56 pounds per lineal yard, should have been free, the same as rails for railways. The judge decided otherwise and in favor of the crown with costs. A similar case of Sinclair and Doheney, contractors for doubling the track of the Grand Trunk, on account of rails used in temporary sidings, was decided against the contractors. The judge, however, allowed them to move to place the rails in the latter instance in unenumerated articles, which would give them less duty. If not, then judgment stands against them.

Premier Davie leaves to-morrow for Toronto. He will stay there until Wednesday night, when he starts for Victoria via Chicago.

Sir John Thompson left at three p.m. to-day for England. He was accompanied by Senator Sanford. The Premier takes his second daughter with him to Paris, where he leaves her in a convent to pursue her education. Caron goes with the Premier as far as New York.

THE ARGENTINE EARTHQUAKE.

Seventy Thousand People Said to be Homeless.

Buenos Ayres, Oct. 28.—The earthquake which was felt throughout the Argentine Republic yesterday was most severe in the provinces of San Juan de la Frontera and Rio Janeiro. Many churches, theatres and private houses were destroyed. Twenty persons are known to have perished. The inhabitants are in a state of panic, fearing a repetition of the shocks. The government is aiding those who have lost their homes, and everything possible will be done to alleviate their sufferings. Though the shock was felt in other parts of the country, it was less severe than in the two provinces above named.

A correspondent at La Rioja, capital of the province of the same name, telegraphs that the city has been ruined by last night's earthquake. The churches and schools and public edifices are all thrown down. The people are camping out in the neighborhood. Comparatively few were killed, as there was a general rush into the open. The first lasted twenty seconds. The scene was a horrible one, women shrieking and fainting on all sides when the walls came crashing down. Two Sisters of Mercy were killed, and more are buried under the ruins. From San Juan come reports that the shock continued during the night, but were light in character. No a house in town is without damage. It is reported that in various parts of the province the ground opened and geysers of boiling water and mud spouted forth.

Couriers arrive here with news of the damage wrought in the various departments and towns. The village of Del Aberdon has been completely swallowed up in the huge gaps which opened in the ground. The national government is sending special trains with doctors, tents, food and every kind of assistance, as well as laborers to clear away the wreckage. La Presna has opened a public subscription list and the town of La Rioja has contributed 10,000 milreis. It is estimated that at least 20,000 people are homeless. South of Buenos Ayres only a slight shock was felt. The wave appeared to have passed away to seaward near the mouth of the La Plata river.

NEARING PORT ARTHUR.

Japanese Preparing for an Attack on the Chinese Stronghold.

Report That the Empress of Japan is Dead—Movements of the Armies.

London, Oct. 29.—The Central News correspondent in Shanghai says it is rumored in Tientsin that the young empress is dead, but the fact will not be announced nor mourning worn by the court until after the birthday of the dowager empress.

The Central News correspondent in Tokio telegraphs: It is not believed here that the Japanese will attack Port Arthur before the end of the week. Gen. Nodzu, who commands the advance force of the Japanese army, has abandoned the pursuit of the fugitives from Kuliencheng, as he does not wish to be burdened with more Chinese prisoners. The Japanese march upon Fong Huang Cheng has begun.

The London correspondent of the Berlin Kreuz Zeitung had an interview with a Japanese attache here yesterday. The attache said he learned privately from friends acquainted with Manchuria that for a trained army campaigning in that region would be easier in winter than in summer. The ice in Corea bay would not suffice to prevent the free movement of the Japanese warships.

The Chinese occupy a very strong position at Honwang, the castle being guarded by twenty thousand men. More troops are being massed at Kinchow with a view to the defence of Port Arthur. The Japanese have completely blocked Talienwan and Port Arthur and all the adjacent bays and ports. Further Japanese forces have landed at Seikiofu, south of Port Arthur.

The Japanese legation here has received official telegrams from Tokio confirming the reports of the fighting at Kiulen. They say the Japanese loss was twenty killed and eighty-three wounded. Field Marshal Count Yamagata is now at Wiju.

A dispatch from Shanghai states that several thousand troops at Kanking mutinied and refused to march to Tientsin because their pay was in arrears for several months.

A dispatch to the Times from Tientsin says a large Russian fleet is assembling at Chee Foo.

The Daily Graphic prints this dispatch under a Yokohama date: The Chinese fleet is centreing in Chinkow, with a view of defending Port Arthur against the Japanese. The intention of the Japanese is to blockade Port Arthur, Talienwan, and all near by ports and bays.

Japanese overtures to Russia for a new commercial treaty have been received favorably, and the negotiation will be begun soon.

The Shanghai correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs: "A dispatch from Cheekoo says a Russian fleet has arrived there and that a Japanese fleet of eleven vessels, including several torpedo boats, is at Wei-Hai-Wei.

A dispatch to the Times from Shanghai says the Chinese fleet has been ordered to protect Shanhaikwan. The dispatch adds that a Japanese fleet with thirty-four torpedo boats is threatening Wei-Hai-Wei.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 28.—The Japanese legation to-day received a dispatch which confirms the news published this morning in dispatches from Shanghai of a second victory of the Japanese army under Marshal Yamagata. The telegram is dated Hiroshima, and reads as follows:

"Before dawn of October 26 our army under Marshal Yamagata attacked Kinlencheng, one of the important strongholds upon the Chinese frontier. The place was defended by sixteen thousand troops under Generals Lin and Song. They fled after only a slight resistance, and the Japanese forces took possession of the fortifications and the city. They captured thirty large field guns, an immense quantity of rice, food of other kinds, etc., and more than three hundred tents. The Japanese loss was twenty killed and eighty-three wounded. The Chinese lost more than two hundred [illegible] wounded is not known."

It is believed at the Japanese legation that the General Lin mentioned in the above dispatch is the noted Chinese commander who played a prominent part during the Tonkin difficulty, and to whom it was recently reported Li Hung Chang had offered the chief command of the Chinese army.

TEXAS CATTLE PROHIBITED.

American Ambassador to Protest Against Germany's Action.

Washington, D.C., Oct. 29.—Secretary Gresham, upon the receipt of the protest from the secretary of agriculture on Saturday, regarding the prohibition of American cattle by Germany, promptly directed Mr. Theodore Runyon, the U. S. ambassador at Berlin, to make representations to the German government, stating that Texas fever could not be communicated by diseased cattle, so that even if the reported discovery of this disease were correct there would be no danger to German cattle, also that the meat of cattle affected by this disease had never been shown to be dangerous to the consumer. The ambassador was, therefore, instructed to protest against the action of the German government.

GERMAN POLITICAL CHANGES

Retirement of Chancellor Caprivi Assumes the Caracter of a Dismissal.

The New Chancellor Too Old to Enjor a Long Tenure of Office.

Berlin, Oct. 28.—As the political situation clarifies the retirement of Caprivi from the chancelloship assumes still further the character of an actual dismissal. The trouble appears to have originated in the emperor's reception of a deputation of East Prussian agrarians headed by Count Eulenberg. The deputation was submissive, but the agrarian organ used the reception as a proof that the emperor was favorable to Eulenberg. The latter appeared to be determined to remain in office. Caprivi submitted a memorandum to the emperor on Tuesday, offering to resign if Count Eulenberg remained in office. Being forced to choose between the two, the emperor, as is known, gave his unqualified approval to Count Caprivi's policy. Thereupon, as a set-off to the emperor's reception to the agrarians, the article in the Cologne Gazette attacking Eulenberg appeared. Eulenberg resigned on Friday morning. The emperor sent Herr Lucanus, chief of the civil cabinet, to ask Caprivi whether he had inspired the article in the Gazette. Caprivi replied in the negative, but expressed his sympathy with the paper's views. The emperor then summoned Count Caprivi and demanded a public disavowal of the article. Caprivi repeated that he had not inspired the article and would not publish a disclaimer, because he agreed with its views. He had no alternative but to resign, which he did. It is now known as a fact that the emperor tried to reconcile the personal differences between the two men, but failed.

Comments are made on the curious eruption of the imperial personal idiosyncrasies into the domain of government. Had Caprivi been discarded for the purpose of inaugurating an alternative policy the public could readily understand the change, but that a new chancellor should be appointed to execute exactly the same policy his predecessor advocated is altogether a new development of political ideas.

Prince Hohenlohe visited Caprivi today. The latter will enjoy a pension as ex-chancellor, but his army pension will be cancelled. After a visit to Geneva he intends to take up his permanent residence with his nieces on their estate in Brandenburg. Prince Hohenlohe's age (he is now 75 years old) is regarded as precluding a long tenure of office or active participation in affairs, and especially in the reichstag. The imperial policy will now more than ever be under the personal guidance of the emperor, to the no small alarm of the liberal-minded Germans, who compare the seeming instability of the emperor's character with the steady purpose and aims of the old Emperor William.

It has now become known that Eulenberg introduced the East Prussian agrarian deputation without notifying or consulting Caprivi. The latter's resentment is therefore considered to be justified.

The choice of Prince Hohenlohe insures the continuance of the foreign policy as heretofore. He obtained favor in France as German ambassador, and though he has no idea of any territorial restoration in home politics he is a moderate Conservative.

Herr Koeller, the new Prussian minister of the interior, is in Prince Hohenlohe's confidence, but his policy is more doubtful. He has been strongly identified with the anti-socialist and anti-Semitic movements. It is hoped, however, that his long connection with Prince Hohenlohe has subdued his more extreme views. While Baron Marschal von Bieberstein retains the portfolio of imperial minister of foreign affairs a reactionary policy may be regarded as impossible. He recently informed the emperor that if any such policy were adopted against Count Caprivi's wish he would be obliged to relinquish office.

Late to-night a rumor is current that the emperor wants to appoint Count Eulenberg governor of Alsace-Lorraine, but that Prince Hohenlohe opposes it.

It is expected that the appointment of Prince Hohenlohe-Schillingsfurst as imperial German chancellor, to succeed Count Caprivi, will be gazetted to-morrow. It is also expected that the Gazette will contain the announcement that Herr Koeller, under secretary of the interior for the province of Alsace-Lorraine, has been appointed Prussian minister of the interior. vice Count Bothe Zu Eulenberg, who had that office in addition to being Prussian ministerial counsel. Both Prince Hohenlohe and Herr Koeller accompanied the emperor and empress from Berlin to Potsdam. They spent the day in the city, and the four returned to Potsdam together at six o'clock this evening. They dined and spent the evening at the new palace at Potsdam, and will return to Berlin to-morrow. Herr Koeller will probably enter upon his duties at the ministry of the interior at once.

London, Oct. 28.—A dispatch to the Times from Berlin says it is believed that the only department changes likely to follow the change in the chancellorship and the Prussian ministry will be those necessary to prevent friction in the state machinery. The emperor being especially anxious for the continuance of the present foreign policy, Baron Marischal von Biebersein, secretary of state for foreign affairs, will retain office. The crisis, therefore, remains an internal, and, in the emperor's views, merely a personal one. Whether it was necessary for such a purpose to subject the country to such a severe shock is another question. A Berlin paper cynically remarks there are two men overboard, but the course remains unchanged. Perhaps the only person who may be sincerely congratulated is Count Caprivi.

Rome, Oct. 29.—The appointment of the Prince of Hohenlohe to the German chancellorship and Prussian premier has made a good impression on Italian politicians. His brother, Prince Gustav Adolf, of Hohenlohe, Cardinal Priest, has received numerous messages of congratulation.

DASTARDLY DEED.

Hungarian Boarding House in Pennsylvania Blown Up.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 28.—A large Hungarian boarding house at Laurel Run, in this county, was blown to atoms by dynamite at three o'clock this morning, and three of the inmates were killed outright, four fatally injured and half a dozen seriously hurt. The killed are: Frank Nowaski, Michael Gallets and Geo. Silocky.

The fiends who planned the explosion did their work well, despite the fact that part of the plan failed. They placed about twenty-four sticks of dynamite under the building, each stick being about nine inches long and weighing about half a pound. A wire connected the sticks with a battery about fifty yards away. When the signal was given only half a dozen of the sticks exploded. They were sufficient, however, to completly wreck the building, not a beam or plank of which was left standing. Several of the inmates who occupied beds on the upper floor were hurled fifty feet into the air, some of them escaping fatal injuries by lighting on the trees near by. Half dazed by fear, they managed to hold on to the limbs of the trees until they regained their senses and were able to reach the ground.

A track walker who arrived on the scene shortly after the explosion says it resembled a battle field. The cries of the injured were heartrending. Some of them were in the trees and others were lying on the ground under the debris of the wrecked building. One of the boarders who escaped injury made his way to a neighboring shanty and awoke the inmates. Blankets and bedding were carried to the scene and the injured made as comfortable as possible. At daylight the officials of the Lehigh Valley railroad were notified, and a special train with a full corps of doctors was hurried to the scene. The doctors dressed the wounds of the injured, who were then brought to the hospital in this city.

The boarding boss says he is at a loss to know what prompted the dastardly deed. As far as he knows he has no enemies in the world. Some of the boarders think the motive was robbery, as several of them were known to have considerable money in their possession. If this was the object of the fiends, it is plain why they placed so much of the explosive under the building. They wanted to kill every person in the building, in order to get the plunder and then escape detection. Up to 7 o'clock to-night no arrests have been made. One of the wounded men says that immediately after the explosion he saw four strange men running down the road leading to the village at Miners' Mills. They carried lanterns. While he lay on the ground another stranger approached him and rifled his pockets. He also cut the belt which encircled his waist and carried it away. Another of the injured gives it as his opinion that the men seen on the ground after the explosion were tramps. The dynamiters used Pittsburg dynamite, which fact may lead to their discovery, as dynamite of that character is used by the railroad contractors, whose tool house is near by the scene. The house had been broken open and a new battery taken out. An old battery was found near by. The supposition is that the latter is the one that did the work, and the new one was still in reserve.

Michael Bellakovitch, the proprietor of the boarding house, was arrested to-night and sent to jail. The authorities say they want him as a witness.

AMONG THE ISLANDS.

Notes of rogress—New School—A Band of Unruly Indians.

Plumper Pass, Oct. 29.—The diamond drill (property of a Vancouver syndicate of which C. D. Rand is at the head) has arrived, and boring operations for coal have commenced on the land of John Deacon on Mayne Island.

A new school house has been erected on Mayne Island this summer, and the school grounds have been graded. Anyone visiting this building will be struck by the cheery aspect of the teacher and the willing and cleanly faces of the children.

Road work is progressing favorably on Galiano Island under the superintendence of the popular road master, Mr. E. Winstanley.

Mr. R. G. Grey, of Samuel Island, has just received his commission as justice of peace.

A new store with postoffice has also been opened at Saturna Island by Mr Harold Payne and his brother, Mr. Gerald Payne, is building a fine residence.

A Presbyterian service, conducted by Rev. T. Menzies is held in Mayne Island school house every Sabbath at 3 p.m., where there is a fair attendance.

A party of intoxicated Cowichan Indians returning from Canoe Pass, were landed on the wharf by the Yosemite on the 28th instant. They commenced to fight and P. C. Drummond attempted to interfere but found the odds against him too heavy. Calling three white men to his assistance, he once again attempted to make an arrest, but eventually decided to postpone carrying out the law, as numbers were too great against him. The Indians are all well known. During the fracas one of the staunch whites received a heavy blow in the face from the fist of an intoxicated klootchman.

THE CZAR IMPROVING.

Doctors Take a More Hopeful View of His Case.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—An official bulletin issued from Livadia at 10 o'clock this morning, bearing the signatures of the five physicians in attendance on the czar, says: "The czar slept well last evening. His appetite is good. His condition is unchanged." The regular official bulletin, dated Livadia and timed at 7 o'clock this evening, says the condition of the czar shows no change.

It is stated to-night that Dr. Zacharin now takes a more hopeful view of the czar's case. He says the czar will be able to give the czarewitch and Princess Alix his blessing on the occasion of their marriage, which it is now stated will take place to-morrow. The czar fixed to-morrow as the wedding day because it is the anniversary of the disaster of the imperial train at Bourka, which many believe was the result of anihilist plot to kill his majesty. Dr. Grube to-day tapped his majesty and relieved the swelling.

M. Durnove, minister of the interior, intends resigning on the death of the czar.

The Grashdanin, Novoe Vremya and other papers, in expressing gratitude for the universal sympathy shown abroad for the czar, refer to the delicate act of Emperor William in personally attending the services held Friday in Berlin, while the French ambassador at the German capital thought it sufficient to send a representative. The papers add that Emperor William also sent Prof. Leyden to Livadia, hoping that he would be able to benefit the czar.

Washington, City, Oct. 28.—The following bulletin concerning the czar's condition was received here to-day by Prince Cantacuzene, the Russian minister.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 28.—9:45 p.m.—The emperor slept well on Friday night. Yesterday the appetite was good and the function of the heart more satisfactory. General condition better. Edema has not increased.—Giers.

ROSEBERRY'S SPEECH.

It Makes His Future as a Liberal Leader.

Boston, Oct. 28.—Hon. T. D. Sullivan, ex-lord mayor of Dublin, lectured this afternoon on "Fourteen Years of British Parliament." In delivering it he ridiculed the house of lords and predicted that its end was near. The speaker also touched upon Lord Roseberry's speech at Bradford last evening in his address. In an interview on the subject he said:

"I regard this speech as a trumpet-blast of prophesy. So far as I have read it in the cablegram, I believe it will come to the great satisfaction of the Irish people. It will have great effect in Ireland. I believe it will carry the next general election."

London, Oct. 29.—The Daily News says Lord Roseberry's speech was the finest ever delivered, and has made him a future as a Liberal leader.

MATERNITY SCHOOL AGAIN.

Before the Hospital Directors Dr. Davie States His Objections to It.

Thinks the Present Scheme Too Small—Referred to a Committee—Finances.

The board of directors of Jubilee Hospital had another conversazione with the maternity school project as the subject last evening. A variety of views were expressed and the matter got as far as reference to a committee, which will formulate a report. President Davies presided and the directors present were W. M. Chudley, J. S. Yates, G. H. Brown, I. Braverman, Thomas Shotbolt, John Braden, M. P. P., Alexander Wilson and D. M. Eberts, M. P. P. Mr. Davies brought the matter of the maternity school up by saying that he had invited Dr. Davie to be present at the meeting and give his views. They had heard from Dr. Helmcken and others who favored the idea, but there were certain objections to the scheme which should be weighed. Some people made the mistake of believing that the money was given for the specific object of building a maternity school or hospital. It was given without any particular directions as to its disposition with the request that the donor's name be associated with the hospital in the way of a memorial. Dr. Davie had certain views which he could best express himself and he therefore called on him.

Dr. Davie said he believed that if the matter were properly placed before Mrs. Pemberton she would willingly make the additional donation of $1500 for an operating theatre or anything else, with the object of establishing a perpetual memorial to the name of Mr. Pemberton in connection with the hospital. He regarded the whole amount as too small to erect a maternity ward. The object of instructing the nurses was a secondary consideration in the hospital, and the primary object was the treatment of the sick and poor. The object of the Pemberton bequest would be defeated as anything they could build with the money would be superseded in a short time by a larger building or room and it would also add to the expenses of the hospital at once at a time when the hospital was embarrassed for funds. He was as well opposed to the idea of setting aside a certain number of rooms in the hospital to be used for the purposes to be accomplished by the proposed school, as he regarded such a plan as dangerous. As to the alternative proposition of an operating theatre he said it could be erected with the money offered, and would increase the revenue of the hospital, as it would give more room in the hospital proper for patients. The building could be known as the Pemberton operating theatre. If they had ten thousand dollars they could erect a maternity hospital which would be a school at the same time. If they decided to erect the maternity school he would favor the changing of the plans, but he could not but call the idea small. He believed that there were more maternity nurses here than they had cases for.

Mr. Wilson announced himself as greatly in favor of the adjunct to the hospital and the fullest possible training for nurses. They would be aiding the city and doing good to a certain class of people beyond that. He did not think the objections were material. The building might be superseded but would still be there.

A search was here made in the records of past meetings to see what position the matter was in. It was found that it had been left to a committee to act.

Mr. Hayward said that the special committee, of which he was chairman, would have awarded the tender if they could have got the figures down to a reasonable amount. They had delayed to confer with the board, but now, however, they had received a reasonable offer from Mr. Catteral. He suggested that the matter be referred back to the committee for further consideration.

Mr. Wilson moved that that be done and there was a seconder.

Mr. Yates thought they were creating a new and big expense. It was proposed to handle only poor patients, and the hospital would have to maintain it.

Mr. Wilson regarded it as a necessity, and he believed that it would do no harm to build the structure if they were not in a position to start the school. He instanced several cases that the city had had to pay for and dearly too.

Mr. Davie did not believe the building big enough, as it would only accommodate three patients.

Mr. Chudley said he thought despite the legal opinions that the money could be used for general purposes. He believed that maternity schools or hospitals were, as a rule, kept separate from hospitals. They would be increasing expenses and did not think it fair.

Mr. Yates said in considering any city aid they should see what the city would do or wanted. It would be a great increase in expenses.

Mr. Braden agreed with Mr. Yates and said he was strongly opposed to increasing the hospital debt.

After some further discussion the resolution of Mr. Wilson was carried.

A letter from Dr. J. S. Helmcken, enclosing one from himself and one from Dr. Richardson, already published in the Times, was received and filed. So was one from City Clerk Dowler.

Chief Deasy wrote re the placing of fire escapes at Jubilee Hospital, as provided by the provincial act. Referred to the November committee.

Mr. Braden said the act would very likely be amended at the coming session.

Piercy and Company wrote asking for a portion of the hospital patronage and it was agreed they should have it. Referred to the committee of the month.

The committee for the month reported the number of patients in the hospital to be 39 and the average for the month 44 1-2. The report presented a number of other matters to the notice of the board, the most important of which was the matter of giving the nurses proper quarters. The idea suggested was to build a cottage on the grounds for the doctor, which would give four rooms in the hospital proper up to the nurses. Plans of a cottage, to cost completed $2100, were submitted. Trustee Yates said the money could be obtained by mortgaging the French hospital property, and the interest would be but $160 a year.

Alexander Wilson urged that the matter be delayed, and after some of the minor matters in the report were disposed of, it was referred to the next committee of the month.

Treasurer Chudley reported that the bills for September amounted to $1404.61, and they were ordered paid as soon as funds were available. He reported the liabilities up to September 30 were $4401.60. They had $1180 on hand and the salary list for October totalled $559.50. The salaries were ordered paid.

President Davies said that counting the October expenses they were nearly $5000 in debt, and he said he did not need to tell them that something must be done. After a short discussion it was agreed to make "finances" the subject of discussion at the next meeting.

Mr. Chudley was empowered to see the old French hospital property if a purchaser could be found, and the board adjourned.

A CONFESSION.

Thousands Poisoned.

Many Are Dying Weekly.

Past Attacks of "Grippe" Have Left the Seeds of Death.

Ordinary Prescriptions Fail to Cleanse the System.

Paine's Celery Compound is Curing the Poisoned Victims.

The ablest medical men in the world say that all who have been attacked by "Grippe," and who have not thoroughly recovered, have the seeds of disease in their bodies working surely toward death. A deadly poison is implanted in all the nerves of the body. We see around us nervous and trembling men and women; we see the melancholic, despondent and sleepless, who are weary of life, and we note with alarm the haggard appearance of hundreds, whose expression of face indicates coming insanity.

For such unfortunate individuals wise and prudent physicians have recommended Paine's Celery Compound as the safest, surest and most efficacious medicine for eradicating all traces of poison and impurities from the system.

Past experience has fully proved the superiority of Paine's Celery Compound over every other form of medicine. It quickly purifies the blood, braces the nervous system, gives tone and vigor, health and great bodily strength.

The following letter of testimony from Mrs. Mary E. Lampman, of Woodstock, Ont., is assuring, comforting and consoling for every sufferer:

"After serious consideration, I think it my duty to acknowledge the great good that I have derived from Paine's Celery Compound. No living mortal can imagine the sufferings that I endured for months. That demon "La Grippe," got a fast hold of me; I became nervous and was so prostrated that I could not sleep night or day.

"Life became a burden and I was reduced to a mere skeleton. My appetite was very poor, and I was so extremely nervous that I could not bear to have any person in the room with me.

"One Sabbath afternoon I read one of your papers, 'Our Album,' and found that Paine's Celery Compound had cured many people. I though I would try a bottle, and bought one that afternoon and commenced to take it according to directions. The relief was almost instant. I continued the use of the Compound, with the result that I can now sleep well all night and feel well when morning, gaining in flesh and feel like a new person.

"I cannot find words to express my gratitude for your great Paine's Celery Compound, and for the wonderful cure it has brought about. I am 73 years of age, and can now walk five miles without feeling very tired. I am telling my friends and neighbors who are sleepless and suffering as I was about your medicine. Wishing you unbounded success, and hoping this may be read by some one who is afflicted and anxious for relief."

CIENFUEGOS RELEASED.

The Last of Ex-President Ezeta's Companions Discharged.

San Francisco, Oct. 27.—Col. Cienfuegos, the Salvadorean refugee, is a free man. United States District Judge Morrow and United States District Marshal Baldwin received telegraphic instructions from Secretary Gresham to-day directing that the prisoner be released. Marshal Baldwin left at once for Oakland, where Cienfuegos has been confined in the county jail pending final action in the proceedings for his extradition. Cienfuegos was the last of the refugees to be turned loose. Cienfuegos was released shortly after noon. He immediately came over to this city and began to prepare to start for Mexico, where he expects to join his wife and family. In the order received here Secretary Gresham states simply that it has been decided not to grant the extradition asked for. The local federal authorities are in the dark as to the grounds for this decision.

EARTHQUAKE IN ARGENTINA

The City of San Juan Almost Completely Destroyed.

London, Oct. 28.—A dispatch received here from Buenos Ayres says an appalling earthquake has occurred throughout the Argentine Republic. The city of San Juan de la Frontera, capital of the province of the same name, has been totally destroyed. Hundreds of lives are reported lost. No details have been received.

New York, Oct. 28.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says: At one minute past five o'clock to-day a sharp shock of earthquake was felt in Buenos Ayres, which greatly alarmed the residents. The centre of the disturbance appears to have been the city of San Juan, the capital of the province. Churches, theatres, schools and government offices and private houses were thrown down and the streets were filled with debris. Many persons were killed and injured and the people of the town are in a panic.

Pure blood is absolutely necessary to enjoy perfect health. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and strengthens the system.

What Your Advertisement Should Say.

People used to say, "Oh, I never pay any attention to advertising, it never tells the truth." Now it's different, people do read advertisements and they believe them.

Advertisers are becoming more careful and more scrupulously truthful every day. I know a firm of advertising agents, who also own a medicated soap. I said, "Is it really such a wonderful thing, and do you take the care you say you do in making it?"

The answer was: "Of course it is a good thing. We have seen too much of advertising to be fools enough to spend money advertising a poor article."

Most all advertisers understand this nowadays and that is why it pays to read advertisements. It is also the chief reason why advertising pays better than it used to.

The best place to put an advertisement is in the paper that enjoys the confidence of the community. I believe that the standing of the paper reflects on the advertisements that it carries.

A friend of another manager recently recurred to me, but which was conveyed in a remark recently made to me by Mr. M. M. Gillam, the advertising manager at Wanamaker's. He said: "A sleepy paper gathers a sleepy constituency. An alert, wideawake progressive sheet gets readers who like that sort of thing or lifts them to its level."

Wideawake people are the ones most influenced by advertising Progressive people who are not afraid of a new thing, or a new idea. People who believe in the paper they read, because they have learned to rely on it. Put your trust and money in that sort of a paper.

Occasionally an advertisement will fall flat. The wise man looks for the reason. He doesn't say blindly: "Advertising doesn't pay." He looks at the condition of general trade, at the weather, at the goods and the price and the way the ad. is worded.

This is certain. A readable ad. in a readable paper will be read. Probably not by all of the readers of the paper, but by a sufficient number to make the ad. pay, if the goods are right. No doubt about it whatever. It's as sure as sunshine. A cloudy day comes sometimes, but it doesn't stay long.

The Daily Times.

WE AND OUR NEIGHBORS.

Protection has been wounded in the house of its friends. Behold how the Colonist this morning rounds upon it and abuses it to its face:

The truth is British Columbia coal is so much superior in quality to Washington coal that the consumer of coal in the Pacific States for almost any purpose prefers it to the home product. The Washington coal dealer wants to compel the American consumers to use an inferior article at a high price in order, not that the miners may have good wages, but that the dealers may have big profits.

We see that the Washington newspapers are growling because the ships of the American navy, after making many tests of the quality of the different coals produced on this side of the continent, prefer British Columbia coal. The American naval officers know that it is more economical and better in every way to use good coal in the ships they command, but the Washington mine owners do not care a button about the advantage to the country of using the best coal that can be procured. They want to sell their coal, and provided they can get more for it than it is really worth, they don't care a button who suffers, their country, to which they profess to be so deeply attached, or their fellow citizens, whose interests they pretend to have at heart. This is the long and the short of the howl about coal in the newspapers of the Sound cities. The whine about fresh lumber is equally foolish and equally selfish. If British Columbia is not afraid of American competition in Canadian markets, Washington and Oregon should not be afraid of British Columbian competition in United States markets.

From the standpoint of the protectionist it does not matter how superior the quality of outside products may be; he would force the people of the country to "encourage home industry" or fine them if they refuse. And that is all the Washington protectionists are aiming at. They are talking just as the Canadian cotton, iron and coal oil producers do when they are threatened with a reduction of duty. It is a great pleasure to observe that the Colonist does once in a while get a glimmering of light on the trade question, even if it refuses to apply its discoveries to the case of its own country. We may hope that its readers will be intelligent enough to make the application for themselves.

A SIGNIFICANT INCIDENT.

Conservative papers in Manitoba and the Northwest, like Conservative papers in British Columbia, have most sedulously endeavored to create the impression that Mr. Laurier's visit was without political effect. There was nothing in his speeches, they say, and nothing but disappointment for himself and his party in his tour through the country. The most significant commentary on all this sort of talk is the fact that a deputation of the Manitoba and Northwest "faithful" deemed it advisable to visit Ottawa and represent to the powers the necessity of doing something to counteract the effects of Mr. Laurier's tour. Some of the members of the deputation have privately admitted that the Liberal leader's tour has done a great deal for his party in the Northwest, and there is no question that Conservative recognition of this fact led to the visit to Ottawa. Certain of the visiting gentlemen are probably concerned about the safety of their own parliamentary seats and the prospect of their party generally, while others are undoubtedly inspired by the idea that here is a fine chance for personal profit, when the government is likely to feel panicky over the situation and therefore ready to do a little "sweetening" through the medium of their little projects. In any event, there is no uncertainty about the deputation having approached the government with the information that Mr. Laurier's visit has further damaged Conservative prospects in the Northwest—already poor enough—and urged on this ground that the government should do certain things to recover the lost leeway. The results of the visit will appear sometime in the future, but [illegible] can appreciate the strength of the evidence which the incident affords as to the effect of Mr. Laurier's tour.

PROTECTION FALLACIES.

It is an essential part of the protectionist reasoning that "labor" is incapable of taking care of itself; that it is always in need of having something done for it; that it is something to be encouraged by the fostering care of a superior and independent class; and that its wages depend more on legislative enactment than upon its own exertions in production; in a word, that wages are a gift which may be large or small according to the generosity or otherwise of the giver. And what is most singular in this age of "schools and schoolmasters," with the advantages which the working classes possess of obtaining knowledge and of cultivating their powers of reason and observation, is that they should be to so great an extent under the influence of this degrading and humiliating superstition. Workingmen who read with amazement of the absurd attempts of the legislators of the seventeenth century in England to regulate the rate of wages by law, are yet among the most eager advocates of protective legislation for the same purpose. Until workingmen, in the true spirit of self-reliance, come to recognize that labor, free to apply itself in production, and unhindered by legislative interference in exchange, is capable of doing everything for itself; that the wages of labor are not a gratuity, but the just measure of what labor itself creates; that a day's labor and a day's wages are equivalents of value, and that all that labor really requires is freedom and opportunity—they must be content to occupy the position of political tools and suppliants, and to accept the mixed character, part pauper and part producer, which protection assigns to them.

Legislative enactment may change the terms in which the value of a day's labor is expressed, but it is powerless to confer upon it a greater value to the laborer. It may change the denominator which expresses the value of a day's work from $1 to $2, but it can only affect the value of what the production of a day's work will exchange for by making it less. By increasing the money value of a day's labor applied to the making of stoves, or furniture, or clothing, it does not increase the amount of clothing, or furniture, which a stove maker obtains for his work, because it must correspondingly increase the money value of these things, but by limiting his opportunity of exchanging his labor to a smaller circle it makes its value less. The chances of profit to a man having a hundred chances to trade are surely greater than to one having only ten. The argument for protection assumes many insidious forms.

Many who believe that protective tariffs on the necessaries of life are hurtful to workingmen, are persuaded that such tariffs fixed upon luxuries are for their benefit. The first difficulty that presents itself in connection with this idea of taxation is the difficulty of determining what are necessaries and what are luxuries. In an advancing society the luxuries of to-day are the necessaries of to-morrow. To the man who has only bread butter is a luxury, and to the man who has in addition to these things coffee and milk sugar is a luxury, while to the great majority of Canadian workingmen all these things are among the commonest necessaries of life.

This plea for protection appeals to an unreasoning prejudice, which seeks to tax rich men because they are rich, to compel men to contribute to its maintenance not according to the benefits they receive from the institution of government, but according to the extent of their accumulations. This short-sighted plan not only fails to accomplish its professed purpose, but falls heaviest on those on whose interests it is advanced. It goes on the assumption that men can be taxed on their living. This assumption is built on false premises, since to take away by taxation any part of a man's living would be to that extent to starve him. No man can be taxed upon his living, but upon that which he might otherwise save if free from taxation. The proportion to the total amount of their possible savings spent by people of moderate means of every class in luxuries, is much greater than the proportion spent by the rich. Let us suppose the case of a man with a family of five who has an income of $700 per annum, whose living expenses are $400, leaving a possible saving of $300. Out of this he spends $100 for luxuries in good things to eat and wear, upon which a duty of 35 per cent. is collected. Then the tax levied upon his possible savings is 11 2-3 per cent. Let us now suppose the case of a man with a family of five who has an income of $10,000 per annum. Deduct $400 for living (for there is no reason why a rich family could not sustain life on the same rations as a poor one), and allow him to spend $1000 per annum on luxuries. This taxed at 35 per cent. equals $350, a percentage on his possible savings of $8600—or only a trifle over 4 per cent. So that protective tariffs levied upon luxuries fall upon the poor as compared with the rich in the proportion of nearly three to one. And we have only been considering the disproportion in the case of a man of moderate wealth. The greater the difference in the wealth the greater the injustice in the system of taxation. This is only one of the ways in which protection tends to the concentration of wealth, and the longer it continues the more the injustice is intensified. Can those of moderate means, who are by far the greater proportion of the people of Canada, look upon this accelerating power for the accumulation of wealth which the protective system places in the hands of the wealthy minority with complacency?

INTRA MUROS.

CHURCH ADVERTISING, ETC.

To the Editor: Your correspondent, "Libertas," is terribly scathing and severe. Doubtless the vaulting ambition of some of the clergy in all parts of the world to have their church the "biggest thing in creation," ignorant or indifferent to the strain on church members to find the necessary funds, has led in certain instances to keen competition on the part of some of the churches and ministers—some only, for there are still many who regard the church edifice as a place wherein the people may more specially meet to worship God and hear prayer and praise offered the Most High, and where in pew and pulpit self is effaced in the adoration, not of sect, or preacher, but of God. I have often wondered at the unfailing good nature of the newspapers in inserting, free of cost, in the news columns as well as under specially reserved headings, the multitudinous, and also in many instances self laudatory, church and ministerial notices which may be said to permeate each issue of the newspapers. I fear it is needless to ask the newspapers to add to such notices, in whichever portion of the paper they may appear, the warning words, "free advertisement"—still less likelihood of the other mystic words, "paid advertisement," as I fear it would never do to ask our long-suffering editors to so incur the wrath of the various priesthood. Might it not be possible for the ministerial association, or some other equally important church authority, to say: "Brethren, let's quit," and instead of making the papers ruin their competition for them, do so individually by earnest, hard, studious work among the poor, the suffering and "heavy laden?" Surely it would be more in keeping with the idea of true, earnest, sober, dignified God worship to leave the advertising to the ordinary, every day affairs of life. With regard to the other growl of your correspondent, our Saviour's example of tenderness towards all saving those who profaned the precincts of the courts of His Father's temple, by buying and selling therein, should govern us all. Intellectual breadth and a wide personal charity will carry the truth ever onward and upward, and there is, let us trust, but little fear of this world of enlightened thought ever being dominated by any one sect.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Unpleasant Experience of a Couple of Hunters.

Nanaimo, Oct. 30.—The letter in Sunday's Colonist under the nom de plume of "Black Diamond" has called forth much indignation among those who are acquainted with Chief McKinnon. It is hardly necessary to state that the letter is misleading.

Dr. W. J. Curry and Charles Martin went out on Sunday morning for a little shooting on the bay. When they reached Snake island a gale sprang up which left them stranded for the night. A steamer was sent out to them yesterday morning, but they declined to return by her, although wet through. They sailed in during the afternoon, apparently none the worse for their night's exposure.

The tailors of the city have issued a challenge to the N. V. C. company's blacksmiths for a football game.

Rev. R. R. Maitland will give a series of lectures to workingmen on each Sunday afternoon during November.

Archdeacon Scriven lectured to a very fair audience last evening at St. Alban's. The subject was the works of the great American poet Longfellow.

The steamer Montserrat will take the place of the steamer Empire in bringing up freight from San Francisco for this port. The latter will be laid off for a few months, owing, it is said, to the present low freights prevailing.

ENO MUST ANSWER.

Must Answer in the State Courts to the Indictments.

Washington, Oct. 29.—John C. Eno, formerly president of the Second National Bank of New York city, must answer in the state courts to the indictments found against him for alleged crimes committed while acting as its president before he can invoke the jurisdiction of the federal courts in his behalf. Such is the effect of a decision made by the supreme court of the United States upon the appeal of the State of New York on the judgment of the circuit court for the southern district of New York discharging Eno from the custody of the warden of the city prison of New York upon his petition for a writ of habeas corpus. The extent of Eno's operations in 1882 and previous years, which formed the basis of indictments against him, made the case one of the most notorious in all the records of financial irregularities.

MENTAL REACTION TIME.

Result of Some Very Interesting and Instructive Experiments.

Let a dozen or twenty persons take hold of hands in a ring, each is to press the hand of his right hand neighbor as soon as he receives a pressure from the left. One person starts the pressure going and at the same instant observes the position of the second hand of a watch. The pressure passes all around the circle, and when it arrives at the originator he notes how many seconds was required for the given number of persons in succession to receive an impression and make up their minds to act in response. The total time is then divided by the number of persons. This is a crude illustration of the reaction time which we measure with great accuracy on single persons.

As the mental portion of the reaction time becomes more complicated the time becomes longer. For example, the process of mental discrimination and choice requires time of their own. The way we get at these "higher" mental processes can be illustrated in a simple way. A person placed in a quiet room is to tap a telegraph key every time he sees a red light, which can be produced at the will of the experimenter in the recording room. The interval of time between the actual appearance of the light and the moment the key is tapped is accurately measured. For a while nothing but the red light is used—this to obtain the simple reaction time. Then yellow and red lights are turned on in irregular succession. The person has now to discriminate between two colors and to choose between action and non-action. The increase of time required over the simple reaction time gives the discrimination time for two colors. In another set of experiments three colors are used; then four colors. As the discrimination and choice become more complicated more time is required.

The importance of rapid and accurate reaction and discrimination is evident. Astronomers have difficulty in recording the moment at which a star passes a line in the telescope. The sportsman must pull the trigger at just the proper moment. The football player, the fencer and boxer are trained in rapidity of discrimination and reaction. It is very evident that a player or a pugilist who takes a long time for discrimination, choice and volition will give a decided advantage to a quick opponent.—The Forum.

Miscellany.

The fate of old Newgate hangs in the balance. Years ago we were told it was doomed, but there the dismal old building still is, an object of wonder to visitors, but an encumbrance on the minds of those who wish to see the valuable site put to a more useful service. It is stated on good authority that negotiations have recently been taking place for the purchase of the site, the would-be purchasers being a syndicate of city men whose idea is to erect big commercial premises, Manchester warehouses in particular, on the ground now occupied by the prison. The arrangement, however, was not concluded, although the sum offered exceeded £200,000, and Newgate has probably been given another lease of life. But its demolition cannot be much longer delayed. The authorities seem reluctant to sanction the disappearance of the historic prison, and have just spent £3000 upon making the stuffy Old Bailey courts habitable, as if [illegible] has its uses. Were Newgate situated in any other part of London we might wish to keep it as an interesting relic of the past, but its preservation in the heart of the city would be an expensive indulgence in an unprofitable sentiment.

FROM THE NORTHERN MINES.

Business Men in the City from Cassiar and Yukon.

J. Ladue, of the firm of Ladue & Harper, saw mill owners and merchants of Ogilvie, high up on the Yukon river in Canadian territory, and John Highland, of Telegraph creek, Cassiar, and formerly of this city, arrived here this morning on the Rosalie. They came south on the steamer Chilkat, arriving at Port Townsend on Sunday. Mr. Highland returns from Cassiar after a stay of eighteen months. He has been engaged in business with his father, and has come down to attend to some affairs of the firm. He will return again after a stay of a few months. He states that the season has been a fairly prosperous one.

Mr. Ladue has been in the Yukon country since 1882, and believes that this will be the greatest year that the country ever saw in the production of gold. Frank Chromeo has about $33,000 to show for his season's operations, and his partner, Budreau, has about the same amount. All the old-timers and many of the new men did well. It is difficult to estimate the total output, but an actual count showed about one thousand miners at work. New and very rich diggings were found at Birch creek, a tributary of the Yukon, and situated about 238 miles below the Forty and across the river and about due south of Fort Yukon. This winter work will be carried ahead in nearly all drift diggings, and particularly around Miller creek, and there will be a big wash up in the spring. Mr. Ladue says the true route into the country is by the Taku river, Teslin lake and down the Hootalingua river. The portage from the Taku river north to Teslin lake is only 58 miles, and is through a country where vegetation never ceases. He believes it greatly preferrable to the White, Dia and Chilkat passes from the head of Lynn canal. He came out by Chilkat pass and spent a night in the cabin built by Captain Moore on the side of Chilkat pass closest to the interior. He came down Lynn canal and to Juneau in Capt. Moore's schooner.

A COMING MUSICAL TREAT.

St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society's Hallowe'en Concert.

The arrangements for the Hallowe'en concert are now almost completed, and the Victoria theatre has been selected as the most suitable place, affording ample accommodation for the distinguished guest of the evening, Lord Aberdeen. Suggestions have been made as to other halls, but the committee adhere to the choice of J. G. Brown, under whose direction all arrangements are being carried out. The decorations in the theatre will be an interesting feature and well worth seeing. The programme for the concert is got up in a manner befitting the occasion and will be worth keeping as a souvenir of the visit of the governor-general. On the front page is the seal of the society and beneath is the description of the affair, with a foot note requesting the audience to rise and sing "God Save the Queen" on the arrival of the governor-general. Inside is the programme proper, on the back are found the names of the officers of the society for the present year, the committee for the Hallowe'en celebration and the artists engaged for the occasion. Those taking part in the concert need no recommendation. Madame Laird is well and favorably known as a singer of Scotch ballads; Mrs. Rowlands has an enviable reputation as one of the sweetest of sopranos; Mr. Rowlands is too well known to need any introduction; Mr. Wolff, L. C. M., as a violinist is second to none in British Columbia, and in his Scotch selections will put "life and metal in the heels" of those present. Mr. Anderson has vanquished all comers at the various Highland gatherings held in the province during the year, and worthily represents his country on this occasion. Mr. J. G. Brown as a singer of Scotch songs has many times before charmed Victoria audiences. With such an array of talent secured no one need be afraid of the merit of the concert. Seats can be secured at Jamieson's book store, where the plan of reserved seats can be seen. Tickets can be purchased from members of the society and at all the principal book stores, drug stores and many other places of business.

An Unsolicited Testimonial

....TO THE....

Victoria Lithograph Co.

The following excerpts are from a letter in the Daily Times of October 29th, the writer being Major Dupont, president of the Victoria Electric Railway Co. Probably no stronger unsolicited testimonial was ever given to a Victoria business enterprise by one, as in this instance, well qualified to judge:

"In connection with the loan recently effected the tramway company required to have printed a number of debentures, a nice and somewhat costly piece of work. The Colonist with others in the city who could do the work were invited to tender. The printing was awarded to the Victoria Lithograph Company; whose tender was more advantageous in respect to price and time to do the work than the Colonist's.

Before leaving the subject the writer desires to say that the Victoria Lithograph Company's work was highly satisfactory to and complimented by the experienced representative (at the time in the city) of the English financial house through whom the tramway loan was floated. The writer strongly recommends parties requiring fine or fancy lithographic printing to get specimens and prices from the Victoria Lithographic Company and compare them with the Colonist work and prices, * * * and if their experience is the same as the company's they will find their profit in doing so.

THE CURRAN BRIDGE FARCE.

Differences in the Cabinet as to the Proper Method of Treating the Contractor.

Mr. St. Louis is Minister Ouimet's Relative—The Opposition Searchlight.

From our own correspondent.

Ottawa, Oct. 20.—The government's action in connection with the Curran bridge scandal will go down to posterity as one of the most gigantic farces ever was played, and will help to keep the subject alive in the minds of the people long after the members of the present administration has ceased to exist. It is needless to narrate that which has been so often written, the history of this huge transaction, which, with the aid of the department of railways and its officers, succeeded in robbing the treasury to the extent of some $250,000 in about a couple of months time. But for the protests of the press against the way the work was being conducted under the supervision of Hon. John Haggart and his officers the sum would have probably been doubled before the job was concluded. Well may the Liberal press of the country be called the "search light" of the Dominion. But for the way in which the administration has been watched and its evil acts brought to light the country, instead of suffering at the hands of its present rulers and the nefarious policy and practices they pursue, would be fairly ruined and its credit, which has been badly crippled, would have been gone

I remember, for instance, ten years ago of writing for the press the scandal, then commencing, in connection with the new departmental building here known as the Langevin block. Messrs. Charlebois and Company were the contractors. The government organs, of course, rushed to the rescue of their masters. They always do so. Mr. Charlebois took out a libel suit against the newspaper. There was the usual trouble of amassing evidence for the trial to defend the suit, but on the evening of the date on which the case was to come before the judge Mr. Charlebois dropped it. The next heard of it was during the session of 1891, when it was shown that a building, the contract price of which was between $300,000 and $400,000, had cost about one million dollars and all the extras have not yet been settled. In other words the account has not been closed.

One bright sunny morning, I think it was in the same year, 1884, or it might have been a year or so later, a beautiful yacht found its way into the Rideau canal here and was drawn up alongside the government dredge in the little harbor off the canal. I wrote up the new arrival and credited it to its rightful owner, John R. Arnoldi. I need scarcely say it was the celebrated Joe. Two years or so later Arnoldi deneid before a parliamentary committee that he owned it. He said that Mr. Wilson of Montreal was the owner. The government press had the usual amount of abuse to heap upon the Grit press, because in the exercise of their duty to the people there were some journalists who were willing to disclose the boodling transactions of public officers high up in the ranks of the party. But in the session of 1891 Mr. Arnoldi said that he lied then and the reason that he did so was because he was not on oath. This is probably a good reason why the government object to putting their officers on oath when appearing before a parliamentary committee.

The case of Bradley, the dismissed secretary of the railways and canals department, was exactly similar to that of Arnoldi. The writer was subjected to the same amount of abuse, but time justified him. Long may the great "search light" of the Liberal press continue to do its duty to the people.

The Montreal press had written up the Curran bridge affair before ever the department of railways and canals had looked into the matter. But for this Mr. St. Louis would have no doubt had the balance of $64,000, which he claimed of the government, in his pocket, secured by government vouchers, as he had got what had been paid him. The subsidized organs will likely continue their abuse, but that should not prevent those who have the interests of their country at heart throwing the "search light" on the boodling work of a corrupt administration. The result of such inquiries as I have just mentioned above, and which would never have been brought to light but for an independent press, ought to encourage every right thinking patriot not to be weary in well doing.

But I have digressed somewhat from what I started out to say in regard to the recent move in the Curran bridge affair. On Friday last the government took suit in the exchequer court against Em. St. Louis, the contractor for harbor and supplies, for $144,881, said to be overpaid to him. The information as filed in the court narrates how St. Louis got the contract for labor on the bridge and lock, and went on to show that he had received the above amount by putting in false accounts and false pay sheets. The information concludes as follows, and will show the charges which are made by the government against the contractor:

"Her Majesty's attorney-general (that is Sir John Thompson) further says that by reason of the false, fraudulent, improper and illegal preparation by the defendant or his agents of the pay lists or accounts, in placing therein the names of a large number of workmen and teams in excess of those actually employed or engaged upon the work aforesaid, and in inserting in the pay lists or accounts large sums of money for the time of workmen and teams in excess of the time in which the workmen and teams that were employed [illegible] worked upon the construction of the bridges and lock No. 1, Her Majesty has been grossly deceived, and has, through the false and fraudulent representations of the defendant, as contained in the pay lists or accounts, been made involuntarily to pay a large amount of money to the defendant which was not legally due or owing to him, and Her Majesty's attorney-general charges that the sum of $220550.21 so paid to the defendant as aforesaid, upon the pay lists or accounts, the sum of $143,881 was obtained and received by and paid to the defendant through and by reason of the fraud and deceit of the defendant or his agents as aforesaid, and Her Majesty's attorney-general, on behalf of Her Majesty, has now a right of action to recover back from the defendant the sum so illegally and fraudulently obtained and received by him."

Last session of parliament Mr. Haggart declared to the house that he would have the guilty parties prosecuted. Now, Mr. St. Louis is a first cousin of the minister of public works, Mr. Ouimet. The latter was, of course, friendly to his relative, but in addition to this St. Louis was a heavy contributor to the election funds of the Tories in the Montreal district. He said so in his evidence before parliamentary committee, and his treatment of "Mr. Minister," as he always styled Mr. Haggart, was of the devil-may-care kind.

Well, the session closed and Mr. Haggart declared to carry out his promise by taking criminal proceedings against Mr. St. Louis. Mr. Ouimet protested. The fight commenced. The result was that Mr. Haggart handed over all the correspondence, etc., to the premier and told him to act as he pleased as the government and not he (Haggart) would be responsible. Shortly afterward Mr. Haggart left for the Southern States. Now Sir John Thompson takes the suit above mentioned.

The suit is a gigantic farce as anyone can see, and is merely throwing good money after bad, at the very most. Some time ago St. Louis took action in the exchequer court for $64,000 against the crown. The government took a counter claim, stating that St. Louis was owing them money. Both actions were dismissed but the cross suit was dismissed without prejudice. That is to say the government was allowed to go on with another action if they saw fit. Of course at that time Mr. Haggart intended to take criminal action, and did not push the counter claim. Now in the face of all this Sir John Thompson starts another case, similar to the one which was dismissed, without any new evidence, and for what purpose no one can tell, unless it be with the sole view of trying to deceive the people. If St. Louis is the criminal they are painting him why not take criminal action against him? It cannot be that they are desirous of new evidence. They have all the evidence taken before the commission, the evidence in the trial of the St. Louis case in the exchequer court and the evidence taken before the parliamentary committee. In the face of all this those who may point to the desire of the government to bring the guilty parties to punishment must be the veriest simpletons. Meantime St. Louis laughs at them and is going on with his appeal from the exchequer court to the supreme court in the hope that he will take $64,000 more money out of the treasury.

Most people will have good reason to wonder in all this boodling business there was not some responsibility to be attached to the minister of the department, the deputy minister or the staff of officers who checked St. Louis' accounts and who paid the money over to him. Tories sneer at Alexander Mackenzie, when he had charge of this department, saying that it was with great difficulty he was able to guard the treasury from being plundered by the alliance of so-called friends and foes. But Mr. Mackenzie did guard the treasury, and from the day he left it (public works and railways were then united) until now revelations which have taken place will show how his predecessors have done.

THE LATE CHARLES GOUNOD.

THE GREAT FRENCH COMPOSER WHOSE SACRED MUSIC HAS BREATHED FORTH THE PRAYER OF A GENERATION.

With the beautiful 'Ave Maria' in one's mind, one must almost feel a reverence for its creator. Gounod sang out the prayer that was in his very soul, and all the world has felt its influence. His words of praise for a tonic that strengthened and sustained him in his declining years is one of the most valued tributes to the great 'Vin Mariani.' He says: 'Honor to "Vin Mariani," that admirable wine which so often has restored my strength.' No other tonic so quickly restores strength and energy when weakened by brain exhaustion, nervous depression, fatigue, dyspepsia or sleeplessness, and it hastens convalescence after confinements and fevers. You should send a stamp and receive a little album, free, containing the photos of the many great people who are recommending 'Vin Mariani.' Address Lawrence A. Wilson & Co., Montreal.

DIABOLICAL SCHEME.

Bomb Placed In a Box at the Blake Reception.

A New York dispatch says: The reception given to Edward Blake, M.P., at the Lennox Asylum last week was productive of some results never dreamed of by its originators. In the heart of the meeting, and while all eyes were turned on Mr. Blake as he stood on the platform delivering one of his most impressive speeches, a short, stoutly built, frowsily dressed old man walked swiftly around the back tier of boxes until he reached the last one nearest the platform and to the left of the proscenium arch. In his hand he carried an old, bulky green gingham umbrella, which he seemed to hold with peculiar tenderness. Outside the box he stopped, hesitated a moment, and then entering took a chair in a corner nearest the stage. As he took his seat the old man set the umbrella up in the corner by his side. Suddenly he started from his seat and glided out around the boxes again, and in a moment had reached the street and was gone.

A minute or two later a sharp cry from the women in the box resounded through the house. At the same moment there leaped up a sheet of flame and smoke and the instantaneous movement of the panic-striken people toward the door. Patrolman Lilly rushed into the box and stamped out the fire, while the stentorian voice of Mr. Blake rang out through the building, calling on his audience to keep their seats. "The fire's out, come back," cried those on the platform. "We don't mind a little smoke these days," said Mr. Blake. A laugh followed this salty and the meeting continued. But if the audience had seen what Patrolman Lilly had found they might not have felt so happy. It was the old gingham umbrella that had caused the mischief. Even while the other occupants of the box were wondering who the strange old man was the gingham burst into flames before their eyes. As they ran out of the box Lilly had ran in and beaten out the flames with his boots. Then, as he stooped to pick up the burnt frame, he saw lying among the fragments a small stout tube or bottle. He picked it up and found he was handling a nicely finished bomb. The tube was about eight inches long and about two in diameter, [illegible] with a covering of gelatine, and was filled with a white liquor which the police think is nitric acid. Attached to the gelatine had been a piece of fuse half burnt away.

The police think the old man had lit the fuse in some way while he was in the box or just on entering, but the flame had caught the gingham before it could reach the gelatine.

Mr. Blake's address was a defence of the coalition policy lately adopted by the home Rulers in reference to the Liberal party. About $2,000 was subscribed for the Irish parliamentary fund.

The professorship of the law faculty of McGill University, rendered vacant by Judge Archibald being made governor of the university, is to be filled by the appointment of Percie Ryan, of Montreal, son of Carroll Ryan, at one time editor of the Ottawa Free Press.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN

Important Report From Health Officer Duncan Respecting Infectious Diseases.

City to be Made Defendant in Two Suits for Damages—Other Business.

Mayor Teague and Ald. Humphrey, Vigelius, Styles, Baker, Dwyer, Ledingham, Wilson, Munn and Harris were present at last evening's meeting of the city council.

Archer Martin, on behalf of James Wilkerson, who fell into a sewer on Fisgard street, notified the council that Mr. Wilkerson intends to sue the city and the contractors, if necessary, for damages for injuries sustained. Referred to sewerage committee and commissioners.

Eberts & Taylor, city solicitors, applied for particulars in the case of Lindell v. the corporation. Lindell wants $500 for injuries sustained by a loose plank lying up and striking him in the face. Referred to street committee.

Mr. Parr again offered to obtain a contractor to carry out his plans for the James Bay causeway for the amount stated and asked for information regarding the prizes offered by the city for the best plans. Referred to the causeway committee.

George Knowles applied for admission to the old men's home, enclosing a letter from the medical health officer. Referred to the home committee.

Wilson Bell made a similar request. Referred to the home committee.

H. E. A. Robertson, re proposed visit of the governor-general, drew attention to the piles of dirt on Government street and suggested that they be removed. The letter was received and filed, it having been stated that the dirt would be removed.

Eberts & Taylor wrote stating that the conveyance for the land donated by Messrs. Turner and Pearse for the widening of Cadboro Bay road was now ready, and all that was necessary were letters from the city assuming the responsibility of removing and replacing the fences. The letters will be provided.

The following letter from the medical health officer was received and laid on the table for further consideration:

"29th October, 1894.

"To His Worship the Mayor and Board of Aldermen of the City of Victoria:

"Mr. Mayor and Gentlemen,—On resuming my duties as medical health officer of the city of Victoria I tender you my sincere thanks for the opportunity afforded me of visiting Japan and China for the purpose of securing surgical practice possible under the present international conditions in the east. I may say I availed myself of the occasion to acquaint myself as far as possible with the health condition of the peoples from which at present British Columbia draws the bulk of her immigration.

"As is well known, the port of Hong Kong is the one at which the Oriental vessels take on their Chinese steerage passengers, and, fortunately for myself and the object I had in view, I happened to be called on to act as surgeon on board the R. M. S. S. Empress of India from Yokohama to Hong Kong and return. On my arrival at Hong Kong I at once placed myself in communication with the imperial and local health officials, and by them was affored exceptional opportunities of acquainting myself with the sanitary conditions affecting Oriental passenger traffic. To Dr. Lowson, acting superintendent of the civil hospital, I am indebted for much valuable information and assistance, he having personally accompanied me through the native quarters and supplied me with facts as to their conditions of life and the diseases prevalent among them.

"At the time of my arrival at Hong Kong, through the exertions of Dr. Lowson and Dr. Ayres, colonial surgeon, the Butonic plague (black plague) had been about stamped out, only fourteen convalescent patients being under treatment. These were, however, sufficient to enable me, with the assistance of the above-named gentlemen, to acquaint myself with the character of the malady, which being fostered by filth, had its home amongst the lowest classes of the Chinese population. Moreover, it had been brought into Hong Kong by the Cantonese, who constitute the greater proportion of the Chinese immigration to the Pacific coast of North America. It is well to state here that, save under the most exceptional conditions, the white population of Hong Kong and other Chinese ports are not affected by infectious and contagious diseases as are the Chinese, since they live in a section of their own and are under European conditions of life.

"My contact with the Chinese in Hong Kong and Shanghai also clearly satisfied me that their sanitary conditions and habits of life were infinitely worse than those of the Chinese in this city, and hence the greater necessity for safeguarding ourselves against the possible effects of the influx of this class of population.

"Although the butonic plague to which I have referred had only been a recent and temperory outbreak, I was informed by Dr. Ayres, H. M. colonial surgeon, having charge of the sanitary condition of Hong Kong, that smallpox is never absent from the Chinese population. He advised me as to the needs of special precautions, particularly during the winter months, when the Chinese are herded together for warmth, and being under insanitary conditions, smallpox becomes epidemic.

"Canton and Hong Kong are but a few hours distant from each other, and boats ply daily between them. It will thus be seen that if Canton is, as Dr. Ayres described it, the filthiest city under heaven, and since the greater number of emigrants come from that point, how great are the risks incurred by our community and how necessary it is to enforce the most stringent sanitary regulations against people coming from that quarter. Surely past experiences have amply demonstrated how true it is that Chinese immigration is, from the point of view of health, the most dangerous element against which we have to contend.

"The white population of Hong Kong do not live under conditions in any way resembling those of the Chinese, are a totally distinct community, and when on board ship are divided from them by a "fixed gulf"—the well of the ship. Besides, the Chinese on board ship are every day inspected by the surgeon and are driven on the steerage deck several times a week, during which their quarters are disinfected. All this serves to show the excellence of the arrangements and accommodation for transportation by the C. P. R. steamers, which renders it unnecessary to treat white passengers on landing in the same way as the Orientals, no white passengers being found among the Chinese steerage passengers.

"In the affidavit sworn by me in a recent case I said 'that I believed the baggage of the said Chinese passengers to be particularly dangerous, coming as it does from quarters which we know not of among the Chinese in a similar way as rags coming from ports at which cholera is prevalent would be particularly liable to contain cholera germs.' I now know from personal experience that this statement is absolutely true, and I can well understand the origin of many isolated cases of smallpox which were discovered in Chinatown long after the epidemic of 1892 was stamped out. I repeat that the baggage of Chinamen is particularly dangerous. It is exposed to all the conditions of disease before being packed and taken on board, where it does not meet with a temperature destructive of the germs, and it is only when opened out these germs of disease, buronic plague, cholera, typhoid fever, etc., have the opportunity of being spread and propagated.

"Subjected as they are on board ship to daily exposure to the purifying influences of fresh air, their quarters being daily ventilated and disinfected several times a week, it may be true, and likely is so, that the persons and clothing of the Chinese are free from disease, but as Dr. Lowson counselled me to be absolutely certain that no disease be introduced, the person's clothing and baggage must be disinfected prior to landing.

"I am happy to be able to remark that, as the result of my inquiries and personal observations, I found that the opinions expressed and the suggestions made by the provincial medical health officer, Dr. J. C. Davie, in regard to infectious and contagious diseases at the port of Hong Kong, were absolutely and strictly correct, and that in no way was anything done either by the provincial or municipal authorities which was not necessitated by the facts of the case. Hong Kong is emphatically an infected port, and as such must be regarded; indeed it would be a neglect of duty hardly less than criminal not to fumigate the Chinese baggage, while in my opinion to reduce the danger of the introduction of disease by such persons to a minimum we should do as is done in Australian ports, disinfect their persons and clothing.

"Having had during the year 1893 to handle seventeen cases of isolated smallpox, I can speak feelingly on the subject. There were many obstacles against which the health department had to contend. The law, or possibly its interpretation, complicated matters very much, and local appliances and facilities were deficient.

"Experience has shown that the health by-law requires amendment, and it may be that the provincial health law is susceptible of improvement. I may say that the city should have a well equipped suspect station, at which goods could be disinfected without injury, and to this matter I would respectfully call the attention of your honorable body.

"I write and have written strongly on these points, but as your medical health officer I do so with the strong conviction of my responsibility in the matter.

"We cannot take too many precautions against infectious and contagious diseases, and I trust that the city council will not only regard the subject as I do, but will adopt all measures that experience and common sense have shown to be necessary.

"I have the honor to be, gentlemen,

"Your obedient servant,

"GEO. H. DUNCAN, M. D.,

"Medical Health Officer of Victoria.

Ald. Munn asked if the city had the means at the isolation hospital for the disinfection of Chinese.

The mayor answered that the city did not have a proper plant for the purpose. This should be provided, especially in view of the very inefficient manner in which it was attended to by the Dominion authorities.

Ald. Munn introduced a by-law to regulate the stringing of electric wires in the city.

The finance committee recommended the payment of $320 out of the electric light loan by-law and $443 out of the general revenue. Adopted.

The school trustees applied for $400 out of the school loan by-law. Request granted.

The finance committee reported among other things that they did not think it advisable to decrease the fire insurance tax nor to provide fire escapes for the city hall, as the third story was not being used. Adopted.

The street committee reported on a number of minor matters referred to them during the week.

City Engineer Wilmot reported that before upper Johnson street could be graded it would be necessary to purchase parts of two lots owned by Mrs. Norris and Miss Ellory.

Ald. Wilson objected to the city's money being used to purchase property for the widening of streets. If the residents of the vicinity wish their property improved by the widening of the street they should pay for it.

Ald. Baker pointed out that Captain Rudlin and Mr. Dooley had been paid for the land given by them for widening the street.

The city assessor was requested to obtain an estimate of the cost of the necessary land.

The electric light committee reported that two electrical experts were at present in the employ of the city, one in charge of the new works and the other in charge of the old plant. One was certainly unnecessary. In the opinion of the committee those in charge of the new plant should give their undivided attention to it.

It was the general opinion that Mr. Stickels should have charge until the new plant was in operation, after which a permanent superintendent should be appointed. On motion it was decided that the present superintendent should be notified that as the new electric light works are nearing completion, the council does not see fit to retain his services unless he can give his undivided attention to it.

There was some discussion respecting the encroachment on Craigflower road of certain fences. Some thought the owners should remove the fences and others that the city should shoulder the expense.

R. P. Rithet was accorded a vote of thanks for two deer presented to the park.

Luker & Dwyer were also thanked for putting down a crossing on Yates and Broad streets.

Ald. Ledingham moved that the sanitary officer be instructed to collect the costs incurred in removing a nuisance from under Storey's workshop on Johnson street.

The council adjourned at 9.35.

Since the last regular meeting of the council the following communications were received and referred to the street committee, viz:

Petition of J. J. Taylor and 21 others, requesting that the sidewalk on the south side of Oak bay avenue be extended to Foul bay road.

William C. Petticrew and seven others, renewing a petition for a box drain on Rendell sereet.

A. J. Langley and two others, pointing out the urgency for a sidewalk on Beacon street.

Mrs. S. Ferguson and nine others, requesting that a sidewalk be laid on the south side of Francis avenue.

Major C. T. Dupont and nine others, requesting that the sidewalk on Cadboro bay road opposite Mr. Elford's property be raised to the proper street line.

A. R. Sherk, desiring that the sidewalk on Fernwood road between North Chatham and Pembroke streets be moved in to the street line.

D. Morrison, applying for a sidewalk in front of his residence on Superior street.

H. Callow, calling attention to the overhanging of trees over the sidewalk on Craigflower road.

J. G. Tharks, requesting that the box drain between Young street and the park be extended to a point within about 50 feet of the park.

WHO GOT THE MONEY?

Continuation of the Alleged Saloon Robbery Case in Police Court.

Josie Edwards Testifies That Ahern Wanted to Send Her Out of Town.

The hearing of Joseph Ahearn, proprietor of the Trade Dollar Saloon, at the corner of Douglas and Fort streets, charged with robbing William Hussey, a sealer, of $300, was commenced in police court this morning. The accused was represented by A. L. Belyea and George Morphy, and when brought into court took a seat at the lawyer's table with them. Chief Sheppard conducted the prosecution. There was a large crowd in attendance, and every word uttered was listened to attentively. The case opened with a surprise for the police. Josey Edwards, the pretty little "sporting" woman who is concerned in the case, was called for the prosecution. She was in the custody of the police for a couple of days last week and told a story which formed the basis upon which the police worked and built up the case. She took the stand and entirely repudiated her earlier statements by swearing to an entirely new story in which she told of a spree that she and Hussey had in which money and wine flowed as freely as water. They had carriages, champagne cocktails, suppers, and rounds of drinks galore. She said that she met Hussey at Joe Levy's restaurant at one o'clock Tuesday morning and he accompanied her to her house at 127 Johnson street. He had only $5 and borrowed $5 more from Samuel Hannon. She got the $10 and then Hussey took Hannon's money to keep, promising to leave it at the King's Head for him. Hannon was drunk and sleepy. They left the house at four o'clock, and with Ahern went to the Trade Dollar Saloon. There the fun began. She had seen Hussey take two $100 bills and some smaller ones from Hannon, and at the saloon she remembered seeing Hussey change one of the $100 bills. They had many drinks, and everybody drank at Hussey's expense out of Hannon's money—so she swore. Then came another breakfast, a carriage drive, and a stop at a resort where they had three more drinks. Hussey gave her $45 dollars during the day. When at a loss for any details in the story the witness threw in some more drinks, but along to the last it was doubtful, she swore, who paid for them. She woke up at 2:30 in the afternoon in the back room of the saloon and Hussey was sitting by her side. He told her that he had been to a doctor and a bottle of medicine had cost him $120. She paid subsequent visits to the saloon, and Ahearn told her that "that man says he lost his money and I think you are going to get into trouble. You had better go away." She paid no attention to what he said. Sergeant Walker was the first to tell her of the robbery. On Thursday she sent to Ahearn and asked for a loan, but he sent back word that she already owed him $5 for drinks.

When Mr. Belyea got through with the cross-examination Chief Sheppard tried to show that the witness had been tampered with, but as it was new evidence the court ruled that it could not be brought out on re-direct examination. When the witness left the stand court adjourned until 2 o'clock.

When court reconvened in the afternoon the Magistrate recalled Miss Edwards and in answer to him she said that when Ahearn told her Hussey had been robbed he offered to give her money to go out of town and to return again when the trouble blew over. Cross-examined by Mr. Belyea she said: I was speaking to the chief after the morning session. He asked why I did not give this evidence. I told him I did not give it as I was not asked. The chief did not say what would be the consequence if I did not give this evidence. I did not see Ahearn take any money except what was given over the bar. I gave $20 over the bar and did not get any change.

Mr. Belyea then submitted her to a searching examination as to what she could remember of Tuesday. As to the conversation with Ahearn she did not know whether it was overheard or not. There were several present. Ahearn did not give her any money.

Nellie Preston, landlady at 127 Johnson street, was the next witness. She said the accused came to her house on Tuesday morning shortly after midnight with a friend and remained until six o'clock. She recognized the prosecutor as the one who had taken the money out of Hannon's pocket. At 5.3 Josie told her Hussey was taking the money. She went upstairs and Hussey said Hannon was his friend. One of the girls made Hussey count the money, which amounted to over $300. She told Ahearn about the money and asked if she should send for the police. He asked the witness to let him see the man. Ahearn went and looked at him and said, "Let him fake it: the gentleman is all right." Hussey and Josie left the house to get something to eat and Ahearn and his friend left just after them. The accused as he went through the hall said, "He's got the stuff, and we'll stay with him." Once on the sidewalk one of the two whistled, evidently after Josey and Hussey. She saw no more.

Cross-examined, she said she did not know who Ahearn's friend was. Josey came home at four o'clock that afternoon. Hussey told his friend that he had left his money at the Trade Dollar. They left the house evidently to go there. They returned that night and said they could find no trace of the money. Josey went out on a good time on Tuesday night and did not turn up until Friday morning. She said she had been to the Half Way House. Did not believe she took any money. Josey was with a friend.

Questioned by the court, she said she was sure of the time, for she saw the clock. Hussey was not exactly sober. Josey was straight, and the accused was not sober and had more liquor aboard than the prosecutor.

At 3.40 o'clock Edward Marsden, the carriage driver whose rig was in use that Tuesday morning, was called to the stand.

Brief Locals.

—A drunken swash was knocked down by a Douglas street car last night.

—A little boy who stole some tobacco from D. McDonald was brought to police station yesterday by that gentleman and let go after a few hours' confinement.

—H. M. S. Champion returned at four o'clock this afternoon from Vancouver. She leaves to-morrow evening for the south, presumably for Peru, to look after British interests in that, at present, unsettled country.

—Press dispatches are arriving a day late, and will continue to do so until the cable is repaired. Yesterday's dispatches for the Times came over from Vancouver by mail last evening.

—W. Williams returned at noon today from the Summit, having spent the previous night in the woods. He was out hunting, and darkness overtaking him, he had to remain where he was until morning, when he reached the railway track and caught yesterday's train.

—The findings of the jury in the Bailey case are below: "That deceased came to his death from a combination of causes resulting from a bullet wound in the left thigh received on the night of October 15 on the Indian reserve, and the necessary treatment therefor operating upon a diseased and enfeebled constitution; that such bullet wound was inflicted by Sergeant H. A. Levin accidentally whilst in the discharge of his duty, and that he was justified in discharging his revolver under the circumstances."

—Rev. D. McIntyre, M. A., was examined by the Presbytery of Victoria and ordained a minister. The examination took place in the afternoon at two o'clock, and included Hebrew, Greek, Systematic Theology, Church History and Greek Exegesis. The ordination took place in the evening and there was a large attendance. Rev. W. L. Clay, B. A., preached; Rev. D. McRae addressed the people; Rev. Mr. Murison addressed the newly ordained minister, and the Rev. Dr. Campbell, who presided, put the questions of the formula to Mr. McIntyre, after which he was ordained to the office of the ministry "by the laying on of the hands of the Presbytery." He is a graduate of Manitoba university and has been doing missionary work at Union mines.

MORE RECORDS SMASHED.

Waltham, Mass., Oct. 29.—Harry C. Taylor and Arthur W. Porter continued their record-breaking feats at the Waltham track, and hardly a pleasant day passes that these two stars do not add a new record to their already long list. To-day Taylor lowered the two-mile flying start record from 4:04 4-5 to 4:04, and Porter placed Allen's time for the mile standing start in the shade by going the distance in 2 minutes flat. Allen's time was 2:02 4-5. The tandems took Tyler over the course in the following time: Quarter, 29 1-5; third, 38 3-5; half, 58 1-5; two thirds, 1:19 1-5; three-quarters, 1:29; mile, 1:59 4-5; one and a quarter mile, 2:31 1-5; one and a third mile, [illegible]; one and two-thirds, 3:21 3-5; one and three-quarters, 3:31 4-5; two miles, 4:04. He was paced by Callahan, Howe and Wisner on the triplet, and but for the poor work of the latter riders, Porter would have made the mile considerably lower than two minutes. His time for the various distances was as follows: Quarter, 33; third, 41 4-5; half, 1:00 3-5; two-thirds, 1:19; three-quarters, 1:29 2-5; mile, 2:00.

New York, Oct. 29.—The Board of Directors of the National Cycle Board of Trade of America held an important meeting today in this city. The most matter discussed was the attitude of manufacturers toward class "B" riders and their contracts. It is well-known that during the past season there has been a great deal of talk about class "B" riders drawing a salary from one maker or manufacturer and then breaking his contract and riding for another manufacturer. In order to stop this the Cycle Board of Trade appointed a committe to wait upon Chairman Raymond, of the League of American Wheelmen, and find out if it is possible to have the League in some way recognize contracts as made between manufacturers and class "B" men, the idea being to stop the breaking of contracts.
